

The Department of Economics has funding available to help Ph. D. students cover fees for submission to refereed journals. Please forward an email message from your faculty adviser recommending that you submit your paper (fill in title) to journal (fill in name of journal). Please state the cost of submission and include the URL to the submission page for the journal.

There is a student cap per year of $200. It is permissible to ask for support for submission fees for submission of a revision of a paper whose submission has already been funded in a previous application.

If the paper has one or more co-authors who are not Ph.D. students in Economics at UW, the reason for asking for support from the Department should be explained.

Journal submission funding requests can be sent to Becca George (becca.george@wisc.edu)